

GREGORY A. HADJIAN, CFA

Gregory Hadjian is a senior sovereign analyst at Loomis, Sayles & Company, where he covers emerging markets in the macro strategies group. Greg is responsible for economic analysis and investment strategy in currencies, rates, and credit for the Latin America region. During his career at Loomis Sayles, he has also served as the lead sovereign analyst for the Middle East and Africa regions. Greg joined Loomis Sayles in 2015 and has 11 years of investment industry experience. Previously, he worked at the International Monetary Fund, where he was a macroeconomic researcher and policy analyst in the Middle East and Central Asia Department. Prior to the IMF, Greg was an analyst at the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, focusing on monetary policy operations and payment systems. Greg earned a BA in history from Cornell University and an MA with honors in international economics from Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS).